Legislature Busy

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—The government crop estimate, pointing to a record breaking production in Arkansas, gave a new impetus Thursday to several proposals before the legislature to curb cotton planting.

The house passed by a vote 87 to 2 a bill approved by the State Highway Audit Commission enlarging the commission's power to enable it to investigate as well as audit the State Highway Department.

Hoover Reiterates His Lending Policy

Way Would Have Been Smoother If Adopted, He Asserts

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Pres. Hoover reached back four years Thursday to reiterate his theory of foreign loans following of which he said would have smoothed many bumps from the world's economic path.

Addressing the fourth Pan-American Commercial conference the president recalled a plan he made as secretary of commerce, that foreign loans be made only for "re-productive purposes."

He termed the failure to follow this "a lesson from this depression."

If the nations would do away with the lending of money for the balance of the budgets for the purpose of military equipment or war purposes, even that type of public works which does not bring some direct or indirect productive return a great number of blessings would follow to the entire world.

Hiding of Body Told By Negro Laborers

Says He Was Forced to Conceal Body After Woman Killed

CAMDEN, Tenn.—(P)—Two negro laborers Wednesday told a Benton county jury trying two truck drivers for the death of Mrs. Mary Royer Cobb, 22, how they hid her mutilated body in a dump of woods at the command of Ben Cassidy and Carrell Jesse. Brown testified that he and another negro, Frank Simmons, were offered a ride from Jackson to Nashville, June 21, on a truck containing the two defendants and Mrs. Cobb. As the truck stopped about 188 feet west of the toll bridge across the Tennessee river at Trotters landing, Brown said he heard three screams and three blows of an uncertain nature.

He added that he got out from the truck in which he had locked himself to avoid toll payments and saw the 22-year-old Deatur, Ala., mother of two children, lying face downward on the highway, her head crushed. She was dead, he said.

He testified that Goad made him put Mrs. Cobb's body in the truck and drove on to a spot about 30 miles up the road, near McEwen, Tenn., where he and Simmons were directed to hide the body. The negro said he saw Goad wash blood stains from an automobile crank and from his shirt.

Both negroes testified that Goad told them Mrs. Cobb jumped out into the road and was run over and killed by the truck.

Attorney General John M. Drane said the state would conclude its proof Thursday morning.

Apple Growers Trade For Wheat

Small Demand for Fruit Causes Trade System to Be Established

SPRINGDALE, Ark.—(P)—Apple growers of this section, faced with a bounteous crop and a small demand, are trading apples for products not grown in this vicinity.

One apple grower has traded several bushels of apples to a Kansas grain grower for the same number of bushels of wheat. Another apple grower has traded the fruit for oats to be used for stock feed this winter.

To further the exchange of commodities, J. W. Phillips has started a flour mill at Goshen, near here, and has announced he would take care of all wheat brought into this vicinity by apple growers who exchange fruit for grain.

A local evaporator and vinegar plant is proving a boon for the growers who have large yields of fruit and no method of disposal. The plant has used more than 6,000,000 pounds of apples in the plant here and at Rogers.

Employment to 75 persons, with a daily payroll of $300, is given at the Springdale plant which has on hand 165,000 gallons of cider for vinegar and more than 100,000 pounds of dried fruit. Operations will continue until storage space at both plants is filled.

Robbers Hold Up Springdale Bank

Three Obtain $5,100 and Escape Into Oklahoma—$788 Recovered

SPRINGDALE.—Three unmasked men robbed the First National Bank of $5,100 at noon Wednesday. The robbers escaped and went south. They abandoned their automobile this side of Tahlequah, Oklahoma, and fled into the hills.

Officers chasing the bandits recovered $788 in silver early in the night near the point at which the robbers deserted their automobile. It developed their automobile had been stolen at Muskogee, Okla.

J. L. Stafford, cashier, and Mrs. Walter Dean, assistant, alone in the bank were forced to lie on the floor after Stafford, facing two guns, was forced to open the safe. A third man guarded the front door and forced Miss Grace Clark, bank clerk, and J. Nap Covey, customer, who entered during the robbery, to lie down on the floor.

Stafford at once telephoned Sheriff Henry Walker at Fayetteville and the sheriff of Cherokee county, Okla., describing the robbers as young men, the leader an Indian, all of low stature.

Carl Lichlyter, deputy city marshal, who was first to enter the bank after the robbery, and Will Bill Brand started pursuit.

The loss was covered by insurance. The Arkansas Bankers Association offered a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of each robber or for each robber dead, and an additional reward of $250 was offered by the Washington County Bankers Association.

Arkansas Report Shows 1,750,000; Second to Texas

Greatest Crop in History for This State—Beats Mississippi

BIG LEAD OVER 1930

U. S. Estimate 2 1/4 Million Higher Than Ginnings Last Year

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—Despite the government estimate of over 16,000,000 bales, cotton exchanges responded with a rally and the markets closed at a net advance of 5 to 7 points in New Orleans and 8 to 10 points in New York. This rally was based on investment buying of shorts covering and firmness in stocks.

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Favored by excellent growing weather, the prospective cotton crop continues to pile up in the South.

The Department of Agriculture Thursday forecast a crop of 16,282,000 bales, an increase of 507,000 bales above the September estimate.

The October estimate is 2,352,000 bales larger than the 1930 ginnings. Crop prospects have improved greatly by comparison with 1930 in Arkansas, Mississippi, and to a smaller extent in other states.

The Arkansas production is estimated at 1,750,000 bales—the largest crop in the history of the state.

Ginnings to October 1 in Arkansas are 268,764.

The production estimate for October raised Arkansas to rank as the South's second-largest cotton-producing state with a crop of 10,000 more bales than is predicted in Mississippi, and second only to Texas.

Making Reduction Certain

GOVERNOR FARNELL'S message to the special session of the legislature Wednesday spoke plainly in favor of the Texas acreage reduction law, which already has been adopted by Mississippi and is being considered by the other cotton-producing states.

Although one or two farm communities have demanded "Huey Long's plan or nothing," it is likely that Arkansas will adopt the Texas measure as the successor of the Long total prohibition plan.

We may expect, therefore, that all or most of the Southern states will have on their statute-books before winter sets in a law forbidding the planting to cotton of more than 10 per cent of land under cultivation this year, to be in effect for the next two years. The purpose is to cut actual cotton acreage by about 50 per cent.

It may not be good constitutional law, but we shouldn't be surprised to see substantial results produced, at least for the first year. Five-cent cotton would have cut acreage a certain amount anyway. The acreage will be cut a good deal more when one farmer knows that his neighbor has it to do, unless he is willing to become an outright law-violator.

All this applies only to an emergency year, which will still be upon us in 1932. If cotton rises substantially in price in 1933 the law will be unenforceable—since no legislature has the power to control private property in this manner, and an unconstitutional law is quickly dismissed when public opinion recoils from the hysteria of an emergency.

It must be obvious that what we are trying to do by law in this emergency would hardly be necessary if farm products were controlled by contract as they should be at all times for the prosperity of the farmer. We boast a good deal about "our United States," its mechanical inventions, its industry and natural resources—but whether we like to admit it or not, our agricultural marketing systems are back in the Dark Ages by comparison with the farmers of Europe. Farm production in Europe is controlled by contracts between the individual farmer and his farmer-owned co-operative or syndicate.

In Europe a man almost has to have a license from the co-operative before he can leave town to go out and run a farm. Europeans regard the independent farmer as a bundle of dynamite. They cut him off from his markets. Either he works with the other farmers, or he gets clear out of the country.

The United States boasts too much about freedom, and too little about intelligent co-operative action. Any fool can talk, but it takes brains, energy and patience to work out a marketing system which will do agriculture what has already been done for industry.

Although we appeal in this emergency to the legislature, we are leaning on an uncertain crutch. Our prayer should be directed to our neighbors—for had there been more intelligent action and thorough trust among American farmers in the past, it wouldn't be necessary now to ask for a law which is only good for as long as we are willing to do what the law says of our own accord.

What agriculture needs is less American boasting and a truer realization of our predicament. The only progress on the farm the last hundred years has been the purchase of manufactured machinery. The most important part of the farm—its marketing system—stands just where it stood a hundred years ago, a lone farmer selling against his neighbor instead of with him.

This was abandoned by industry a generation ago. It was ditched by European farmers even before that. And perhaps this temporary legislation of 1931 will drive a permanent lesson home.

Pity Poor Al

"When the devil was ill, the devil a Saint would be;
When the devil was well, the Devil-a-Saint was he."

So goes an ancient couplet that has been handed down through the decades to illustrate the manner in which many mortals repent their sins when faced by punishment, only to resume their old ways when the fear of punishment is gone. "Scarface" Al Capone, when facing trial by jury on charges of defrauding the government of income taxes, makes a maudlin plea that surpasses even his record for effrontery. He fairly oozes self-pity because the public seems inclined to pity his past.

"If I'm unfortunate enough not to get a typical American jury," whined the gunman, "I will be in the hands of men who will convict me because my name is Alphonse Capone." The chickens seem to be coming home to roost with Al and he does not like the noise they make. The gangster will get a typical American jury and all advance information indicates that he will also get a sentence to Leavenworth from which he has been "playing hookey" for all too many years.

Any sympathy to be given should go to the families of some of Capone's many victims. It is probably true, as he says, that he is not guilty of all the crimes that have been charged to him but there is not a man on the face of the earth who would question the fact that any sentence the present jury can give Capone will be far less than he deserves.—Memphis Daily Tribune.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY BUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON. — The Department of Commerce is charged with promoting business and it also has to compile and publish the cold, hard figures and charts which show exactly how business is getting along.

Perhaps that is why there have lately been some seeming evidences of unrest, not to say frayed nerves, in the ranks of the department. Quite a few of the boys and girls there have been speaking or acting out of turn, which is always dangerous for a federal employee.

Secretary of Commerce Lamont and young George Pass share the distinction of having made public boners without being punished for it. George J. Eder and Dr. Ray Ovid Hall lost their jobs and a couple of other valued employees lost a substantial amount of pay.

George Pass is 25 years old, a $1400-a-year minor clerk in the commercial intelligence division. George had a great yen for a foreign assignment. But he saw a great host on the waiting list ahead of him. He realized that to jump over so many heads would be a master stroke. Someone told him—or perhaps it was his own idea—that he could write articles which would call his talents to the attention of his superiors. Without consulting any superiors or any experts on the subject he waded into the rather delicate subject of Russian trade and credits.

GEORGE PASS advised American manufacturers to insist on cash when they dealt with Russia. His article appeared, signed "By G. L. Pass, Commercial Intelligence Division, Department of Commerce." In two columns on the first page of the United States Daily, which specializes on delivering news and information from the government straight to business men.

George's solemn warning to the financiers and industrialists of America caused considerable commotion and the department began to get a lot of telegrams and letters about it. Those interested in Russian trade asked Lamont to show a single instance where Russia had defaulted on obligations to manufacturers in this country. Lamont had to write back that the article was prepared by a "minor clerk" without anybody's approval. He didn't say it wouldn't happen again, but it won't. George spent an anxious week and then was told the incident would be ignored if not forgiven. The departmental attitude appeared to be that it was all too funny to take seriously. An older man probably would have been fired.

Lamont's own slip was made in the midst of summer heat when he wrote a congressman that some wage cuts were justified, meaning such as might be necessary to keep plants open. Democrats and labor leaders hooted and before the excitement died down no one could figure out whether President Hoover and Secretary of Labor Daugherty were trying to repudiate Lamont without seeming to or only trying to seem to repudiate him without repudiating him.

EDER was head of the Latin American division and Hall was one of the department's outstanding financial experts.

Eder was fired after writing an exhaustive study of British and American export trade for the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. He had charged that British statesmen, diplomats and business leaders in the Argentine were promoting anti-American propaganda which was bound to have a bad effect on international relations.

Hall was fired after he had charged a superior officer with suppression of figures and data in his report on international trade payments for 1930. He alleged that the year's imports had been over-valued by the department to the extent of $175,000,000.

All these things have happened in the last month or two. So did the scandal that arose when an eminently respected tariff expert of the department was alleged to have busted a lady employee in the nose.

The casus belli was temperamental rather than economic. The tariff expert said he had only brushed the lady with his elbow, but she is very tall and he is very small, so he was not exonerated. There were other mitigating circumstances, however. The tariff expert was only fined a month's pay and the lady only a half month's pay.

Here's a Duel Personality

She looks as smart as any mannikin, doesn't she? But even if she did come home in a new Paris outfit, points of style are not as interesting as dueling points to this young woman. She's Marion Lloyd, national women's fencing champion, shown here as she returned to New York after taking part in several fencing tournaments abroad.

The Bare Facts

This very attractive bit of display advertising speaks for itself, and for Miss Agnes Weber, too. The pretty Los Angeles girl, bursting with civic pride, determined to do her bit in advertising the 1932 Olympic games in her home city. Strips of adhesive tape on her back started it. Old Sol is supposed to do the rest. The result, frankly, should be a neat display of tan and white lettering.

During the business period, it was voted that a curl market would be held by the mothers in the different rooms for six consecutive Saturdays, beginning, Saturday, October 17. The six grade mothers will have charge of the market for that day, the time and place to be announced in this column later. Mrs. Pat Duffles stressed the importance of the Association working to become a superior organization. Mrs. Ched Hall was appointed delegate to the State P. T. A. meeting in El Dorado October 13, 14 and 15. Following the business session, Mrs. F. L. Padgett, program chairman, presented the following highly appreciated program on "Citizenship." The devotional, citizenship in the home, was given by Dr. W. R.
Anderson, followed by a reading,
"Living" by Edgar A. Guest by Miss Elsie Reed. "Citizenship in the School" was the subject of a most interesting paper by Richard Milburn, principal of Senior High School. "The American Boy as a Citizen" by Henry Taylor, Jr., added much to this interesting program. In the count of mothers, Mrs. Theo. Witt's room won the dollar.

Mrs. W. I. Purkins, Mrs. W. P. Agee
Sr., Mrs. J. L. Cannon, Mrs. J. H.
Arnold, Mrs. Barnum, Mrs. J. T. Kennedey and Mrs. Womack were among

WILLIAM BRADSHAW

Coach Sam Willaman finds that his Ochs State squad this year is much better than last year's. It will be even better than that "Ochs" didn't have to play Michigan and Northwestern.

Two Games? JIMMY WILSON says that Will Bill Hallahan is twice as good this season as last. He won one game from the A's in the 1930 world series. Jimmy thinks he can win two this fall. Very well, Bill, proceed.

Bargain for Ruth. LAST spring Babe Ruth bet Lefty Gomez $250 he wouldn't make 10 hits all season. The other day Gomez made his 10th hit. But Ruth didn't pay him the $250. He had settled a week before for $50.

What's in a Name? THEY are still calling the National Open champion Billy Burke, though the name he prefers is Bill. However, there may be some philosophical consolation for Mr. Burke in the fact that Bobby Jones does not like the name Bobby, preferring Bob, as he is called by his family and intimate friends.

Nice Speech DONALD E. Schindler, Stirling Dean of Cleveland last July, Jones was called to the microphone to make a short speech. He made it, but a short speech, consisting of, "This is a place for me," and sat right back down.

Robbie With Pirates? RUMOR placed Uncle Robbie at the helm of the Pirate ship the other day. Obviously that never will come true. Robbie already has had enough front-office interference with his attempts to run a ball club in Brooklyn, and hardly would wish to go to Pittsburgh for the same kind of experience.

Daughter of Missing Arkansas Banker Weds

CLARKVILLE, Ark. (P)—Miss Blanche, daughter of A. C. Harrison, a missing head of a chain of banks in the Northwest, Arkansas, was married here late Tuesday to Thurman Shadock, both are of Harrison. The ceremony was performed by the Presbyterian church pastor in this city. Shadock is a son of a former sheriff at Harrison.

DID YOU KNOW THAT— MORE than 25,000 tickets have been sold for the Army-Pitt game at Pittsburgh. Harvard has a "Dizzy" Dean, too, but his real name happens to be Johnny. It's just one married man to another when Joe Almon, forward passes to Louis Harrell. The two Louisiana State players having taken unto themselves backfield men, could you say in all fairness that they had taken "better halves"? Ellsworth Vines, the new tennis champion, has been compared to everybody except George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. Bill Kern, Ray Montgomery and Joe Donchess are helping Jock Sutherland give Pitt a good line.

How About Kidnaping? LAST year, on the eve of the world series, you will remember, Jimmy Collins conspired to kidnap (steal) Lefty Rhem of the Boston Red Sox. Rhem was taken to a place called "The Hole," a somewhat of a social success had already "snatched" himself. Anyway, before he got through with the A's, the A's got through with him. In the last series, Rhem probably wished he had been snatched again. This threatens to be a dull world series, with nobody being snatched.

Starting Hoyt GUESSERS have been trying to figure out what sort of surprise Connie Mack will have this year. Here and there it is predicted he will start Hoyt in the opener at St. Louis. I don't think he will. The Hoyt who used to beat the Cardinals has gone away. He won't be back.

Augusta Bank Closes Doors Thursday Morning

LITTLE ROCK, (P)—The State Banking Department was advised of the closing of the Bank of Augusta at Augusta, Ark.

CANBERRA, (P)—Alasing an Australian tariff wall has increased smuggling, with silks and fabrics displaying narcotics as the most profitable commodities for illicit importation.

Camden-Hope Tilt Scheduled Friday

Locals Expect to Win But Realize They Will Have Battle

One among the hardest games of the season is expected Friday afternoon at Camden, when the Hope Bobcats and Camden Panthers meet for their annual clash. Coaches Wilkin and Jones have been giving the locals careful grooming this week in preparation for this event, realizing that the team will have to fight from beginning to end. A number of local fans are expected to attend the game.

CAMDEN.—Back on their home lot after the first road game of the season at Warren, the Camden Panthers this week were in serious training for the Hope Bobcat game here Friday. This is by far the hardest game of the season to date and one of the stiffest of the year. The Bobcats are unusually strong this year and Coach Charlie Wilkin has a veteran team to pit against the Panthers on Abbott Field.

The Bobcats have won two games this season defeating Ashdown and Wadco easily under the new flood lights at Hope. They have worlds of power and speed in the backfield and a strong passing game. The line is heavy and fast charging. The Panthers will have to exert their best efforts to date to win. The locals after a mediocre first half showing at Warren came back and redeemed themselves in the last half. They will have to play at top speed for both halves against the Bobcats or else taste defeat. Rowe and Bacon in the Hope backfield are especially dangerous. The former gave the Panthers plenty of trouble at Hope last year.

Evening Shade

Health is good in this community at this writing. Rev. Chris Barham preached two interesting sermons at this place Saturday night and Sunday morning. Rev. Floyd Clark preached Sunday afternoon. A large crowd attended prayer meeting here Sunday night. Everyone is invited to come every Sunday night. John Odum will lead next Sunday. Mrs. Walker-Wiggins and daughters returned to their home Sunday morning, after spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. Francis Matthews of El Dorado. Misses Mildred, Carolyn and Madie and Effie McKemie were the supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Mart Yocom and daughters, Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Clark of Hope attended church here Sunday morning.

John Odum was the supper guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wright and family Sunday evening. Miss Cozette Wiggins spent Saturday night and Sunday with home folks here. Misses Juanita and Willie Pearl Dumas were the Sunday night supper guests of Miss Verna Nichols.

Patmos

Everyone is working this cold weather. Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Payne and daughter, Melba spent the week end with relatives in Spring Hill, La. L. L. Middlebrooks is at Hot Springs taking a course of both. Milton Talley has arrived to begin school Monday. Miss Catherine Middlebrooks and Hazel Wilson spent a few days with Miss Pauline Jones of Hope. Arvin Rogers is on the sick list this week. Dr. Camp and daughter, Calleen, were in Hope on business Friday. Several attended the party at John Hamiter's Saturday night. Dr. Camp made a business trip to Hartman, La., last week. Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Middlebrooks of Shreveport visited his parents here Sunday. Rev. Beason will deliver a sermon Sunday at 11 a. m. at the Church of Christ. There will be Sunday school at 10 a. m. and Bible study at 7 p. m. Everyone is invited to attend.

"Liberator" School Doomed

NEW LEXINGTON, O.—(P)—The Pigeon Roost school, erected in 1830 and attended by Januarius Aloysius MacGahan, the "liberator" of Bulgaria, is to be razed. MacGahan died in Constantinople after an adventurous career.

Notre Dame Carries On—for Rockne

Going into the football wars for the first time since the gridiron immortal, Knute Rockne, was killed, Notre Dame carried on by defeating Indiana 25-0 and thus upheld the unbeaten tradition which the famous coach started in 1929. The victory was especially pleasing to Hunk Anderson and Jesse Harper who are trying to perform the Herculean task of filling Rockne's shoes. Picture shows Schwartz, Notre Dame's speediest half-back, tearing through the Indiana line, with opposing linemen trying to stop his charge.

Camera Portrays London Meeting of Gandhi and Chaplin

Religious leader of millions—and a man who has made millions laugh... A striking study in countenances is this picture, taken at Mahatma Gandhi and Charlie Chaplin met by pre-arrangement in a tiny house in London's East End. The meeting was at the seeking of the little Indian leader who, until he arrived in London recently, never had heard of Chaplin. Though their argument over the place of the machine in modern life was serious, their attitudes were good-humored, as seen here.

California Law Checks Wastage of Natural Gas

SAN FRANCISCO, (P)—California's two-year-old gas conservation laws has corrected the wastage situation determined by Secretary Ray Lyman Wilbur "shocking to the national sense" to a point where consumption of natural gas may soon exceed production.

The conservation law, first of its kind in the nation and the voluntary co-operation of producers, cut the total production to 209,000,000,000 cubic feet for six months of this year from 288,000,000,000 for the same period in 1930. Railway commission figures disclose that production was cut 27.3 per cent and wastage an even 51 per cent. Construction of a new pipe line to tap the Kettleman Hills field for the transportation of gas to the Los Angeles area is expected to bring consumption to a figure exceeding the present fixed supply.

Police Must Obey Parking Restrictions

FORT SMITH, Ark. —(P)— Though enjoying immunity to some restrictions, the Fort Smith police department has come out a poor second in a conflict of authority with the fire department.

Freckles and His Friends

Ignoring a "no parking" sign in front of the Elks Club, placed there that long fire trucks may emerge from the fire station across the street, Patrolman Ernest Brannon, left his machine within a few feet of the sign and went to the third floor of the club.

A few minutes later, Fire Chief Maurice Brun burst gloomily into the room in which the policeman was visiting. "Yes, sir, it's my car," Brannon faltered. "But I just came up here for a minute, and—"

"What if we want to move the equipment out while you're packed there?" Brun thundered. "There's no parking allowed in this block." "Yes, sir, I'll move it right now—"

When New Queen of Golf Gained Crown

To tell you everything I heard and let you draw your own conclusions. It's a lot better to be in here where it's warm while we're talking than out in the cold."

The waiter returned bearing two heavy white mugs of coffee on a tray. The cups were steaming as he set them on the table with the plate of rolls.

"That'll be all," Bob said shortly, and the youth shambled back to his seat near the front window.

Norma had not lifted her eyes. Their wide, agonized gaze clung to Farrell's.

"It's like this," the young man began, leaning forward. "It didn't take long to find out Travers's name is signed to the complaint. It was filed yesterday morning. Oh, of course that isn't public information, but a friend of mine looked it up. Now if it were an ordinary case it would be four or five days anyhow before there would be any action. The sudden rush is another proof someone with influence—such as Travers—is interested."

"Do you know where Mark is?" Norma's voice was a half-whisper. Hysteria in the trembling accents.

Farrell hesitated. "Yes," he said. "At the Friendship Home."

"Then let's go there. Let's go right away!"

Bob got a hand out and touched her arm. "You can't do it that way," he said. "If you didn't do it any good to go, Norma. They wouldn't let you see him. They wouldn't even admit he's there. You see you'd have to have a court order."

"Then how can I get it?"

"That's what I'm trying to tell you," Farrell said patiently. "It's going to take time. And it's going to mean a fight, too. Travers evidently wants the baby—or else he's doing all this for spite work. I don't know which. If courts were always honest and decisions were just you wouldn't have a thing in the world to worry over. As it is—well, you know what money can do."

"But you said there is a way—"

"Yes, I'm getting that. You asked how anyone could take Mark from you. Well, the legal machine is simple. If the welfare department says Mark's being neglected—that's what the complaint was—there'll be a court hearing. It would be for the judge to decide then. That's what I'm afraid is going to happen. Of course Mark isn't neglected. You have the hospital records—you could have the doctor's testimony—you have everything on your side! But you have F. M. Travers against you!"

Before she could interrupt Farrell went on. "I thought at first we could heat them easily. Even with Travers's influence I thought we could do it—and then I remembered. For an instant the young man hesitated. 'There's the testimony in the divorce case,' he went on slowly. 'They might introduce that. It would heat us!'"

The color drained from the girl's face.

"The exclamation was torn from her lips. 'Oh, Bob—!'"

"Maybe I'm all wrong about all this," Farrell hurried on to say. "It's a lawyer's business to try to anticipate his opponent's moves."

That's why I've studied the black side. If I'm wrong then we've nothing to worry about. I'll be glad to go ahead with it and do all I can."

Apparently Norma had not heard. "You mean they could take Mark away from me?" the girl gasped. "Take him—to keep?" Her voice had been a whisper rose by itself. "I won't let them do it! I won't let them do it!"

Farrell took both of her hands and held them. "Normal!" he said sharply, "you've got to control yourself! Do you want everyone to hear you?"

The words were useless. "I won't let them do it!" Norma declared fiercely. "There must be some way! I'll—I'll kidnap him, that's what I'll do! You've got to help me!"

"I'm trying to help you!" There was authority, a commanding quality in Farrell's voice. "I told you there's a way you can fight back at Travers and fight him with his own weapons. I don't like to suggest it to you but it's the only way I know."

"Tell me, Bob! I'll do anything you say!"

"Wait until you hear about it before you decide. I want you to talk to a friend of mine, Lafe Flynn, the district attorney. I believe he can help you."

"What can he do?"

Farrell's voice lowered. "Flynn's out to get Travers and the crowd he stands in with at the next election," he said. "I've known him ever since I was in law school. Took a couple of classes under him. We hear a lot of politics in our office. It's common knowledge Flynn would like to be governor. He's been collecting evidence to use in this fight ever since he's been in office."

"But what has that to do with me?"

"Everything. If you'll tell Lafe Flynn how you were framed on that charge three years ago, how you were convicted without a shred of evidence and sent to Mount Florence for two months it would be the best campaign material in the world. Exactly what he needs to expose what's been going on for years. Every lawyer knows about the framing and fee-splitting, but nobody's been able to prove it. Flynn's a holy terror when he gets started. He can make noise enough so they won't dare bring up those old charges against you. Hell, know the quickest way to get Mark back."

"When can we see him? Can we go tonight?"

"Wait a minute, Norma. You've got to remember all this isn't going to be pleasant. There'll be publicity—your name in the newspapers and all that. You ought to think about it—"

"But I don't need to think. How can I see Mr. Flynn? Will you go with me?"

"Of course—if you decide it's the thing to do. You'd better talk to Chris about it. I'll drive you out to the apartment now if you're ready."

Norma arose. "All right," she said. "We'll talk to Chris."

It was 10 o'clock the next morning. Norma sat clutching either arm of the high-backed chair, and looked very small and child-like. Bob Farrell was at her left.

The man at the desk before them smiled encouragingly. He was a handsome man, apparently in the middle forties. He was well dressed, almost dapper in appearance. His hair was grayed over the temples but his cheeks had the warm color of a school boy's. Lafayette Flynn, either in his private office or at a dinner party had a remarkable facility for making his neighbors feel at ease.

"Bob sketched the affair to me roughly," Flynn said to Norma. "And they desecrate the word by daring to call these courts of justice! My dear child, you have my utmost sympathy. You say this happened three years ago?"

"It's almost four now," Norma said. She gave the date. "I was 17 and I'd been in Marlboro two months going to business school. There was another girl in school I was going to meet that night and we were going to a movie."

"We'd met before on a street corner near my rooming house. I went there and waited half an hour but she didn't come. I was just ready to leave when a man came up to me and spoke as though he thought I was someone he knew. He was nice looking and very polite. I told him I had made a mistake. He begged my pardon. It was the line any masquerade would use only I didn't know that then. He talked about being lonesome and not knowing anyone in the city and I said I felt the same way. Then he asked me to go have a sundae. I knew I shouldn't but I was lonesome and disappointed because Alice hadn't come. Well—I went with him. As soon as we were in the place I thought there was something queer. Before I could think of any excuse to get away a policeman came and said I was arrested! I hadn't any idea where I was or what had happened until they took me to that terrible jail. The matron told me, 'Oh—it was horrible! I'll never forget that night or the next morning—!'"

Norma hid her face. It was several moments before she could continue.

"I—I was sitting waiting my turn before the judge and crying when Mr. Stone saw me. He wanted to know what was the matter and I tried to tell him. Then he said he'd be my lawyer and try to help me. He got the case delayed. I didn't have any money and I had to stay in that horrible jail cell. When the trial came a week later I found out that the man who had seemed so polite and nice was a stool pigeon. Mr. Stone had my landlady and some people from the business school as witnesses but it didn't do any good. It was—"

"Just a minute!" Flynn interrupted. "Do you suppose you would recognize that man's face if you saw a picture of him—the one who invited you to have the sundae?"

"I can see him now!" the girl said.

Flynn opened his desk drawer and drew out three photographs. He handed them to Norma.

"One of those?" he asked. With a little cry the girl nodded.

5-Year Naval Holiday Is Favored by Solon

WASHINGTON—(P)—A five-year naval holiday by Great Britain and Japan while the United States continues to build her treaty navy is favored by Senator Swanson of Virginia.

The ranking democrat on the senate naval committee has proposed to President Hoover he negotiate such a treaty with the other two signatories of the London naval pact as a means of bringing this country up to its old-time comparative strength.

Swanson, who in the past has supported liberal appropriations for the navy, said a holiday would be much more desirable than reductions in expenditures for the fleet.

Vacations For Horses Is Soviet Farm Plan

SAMARA, U. S. S. R.—(P)—Horses, like human workers in soviet Russia, are to be given regular days of rest from their arduous duties in social reconstruction.

A recent official inspection revealed that the horses on collective farms were receiving inadequate care and rest.

Therefore it was decreed that each draft animal was to have a vacation of seven or eight days, the rest periods being spaced so that 10 to 15 per cent of the horses would always be on leave.

Where Helium to Lift U. S. S. Akron Is Produced

Sixteen years ago, when helium was merely a chemical curiosity, it would have cost $16,000,000,000 to produce enough to lift the Navy's mighty new airship the U. S. S. Akron. But today the U. S. Bureau of Mines makes the gas for six-tenths of a cent per cubic foot at its plant near Amarillo, Tex., shown above. Helium is extracted by cooling natural gas to 300 degrees below zero, at which all constituents except helium are liquefied. Left is the laboratory, where samples of natural gas are tested to determine if they contain helium. Specially designed tank cars like the one at the right are used to transport the 6,500,000 cubic feet of gas necessary to fill the huge airship.
